EX-PRESIDENT CONANT WELL GIVEN HONORARY HARVARD DEGREE

8 OTHERS GET MAKE HONORS AS 2023 GRADUATE

HELP WESTERN BOYS

In the Middle West there are schools that pride themselves on being "the poor boy's Harvard." On these Dr. Conant served notice that henceforth Harvard will throw its own gates wide to deserving but needy scholars of the Great Lakes country.

"As a start in this direction," Dr. Conant said, "we have combined some of our scholarships and appropriated what money we could find to establish five or six prize fellowships for entering freshmen in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota and Michigan."

Changing conditions, Dr. Conant told the alumni, had necessitated a reconsideration of Harvard's scholarship program. It is becoming increasingly difficult for a man to work his way through school, and it is questionable whether brilliant scholars should have their energies diverted by such a necessity.

NINE ARE HONORED

"The exceptional boy anywhere in the country, regardless of his economic status, should be able to continue his education in one of our large universities. Our policy should be to have sufficiently large scholarships for the upper 10 or 15 per cent of the class so that a really poor boy would receive essentially his entire expense."

Dr. Conant also indicated that henceforth younger faculty members would be given greater opportunities for leave with pay to encourage research work as well as teaching.

Gown worried town in the morning when President Conant conferred the first honorary degree of his regime. Of the nine honorary causa parchments, six went to educators.

Of these, the most distinguished was Harvard's own President Emory U. Conant, who was made a Doctor of Laws, with the others honored were:

DOCTORS OF LAWS (L. D.)

Charles C. Burlingham, Harvard '78, former president of the New York board of aldermen.

Dr. Taylor Denness of the Princeton faculty and president-elect of Williams College.

Dr. Harold Willis Dodge, president of Princeton University.

Dr. Charles Frederick Merrill, dean of the medical faculty, McGill University, Montreal, and former president of the American College of Physicians.

Dr. Lee Thorndike, Harvard '94, professor of Educational Psychology, Columbia University.

DOCTOR OF SCIENCE (SC. D.)

Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan, former president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

MASTERS OF ARTS (M. A.)

John Douglas Merrill, Harvard '78, editor of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin.

Herbert Haseltine, famed for his carvings of domestic animals in red-colored stones. These first degrees of his administration, which began at the close of this same day a year ago, and the 2023 academic degree—more than a third of them with honors—were conferred by President James Conant on the traditional platform in Sever Quadrangle, where he was surrounded by the usual dignitaries of church, state and school.

LOWELL IN HONORED

The name of President Lowell, head of the University for 25 years, was easily the most important one on the honors list.

All of these honored are men of solid accomplishments in their fields, but with the possible exception of President Lowell, there was not one whose name struck the name lists of popular enthusiasm as, for instance, that of Alfred Emmons Smith, of New York, a year ago.

"About Lawrence Lowell: For 14 years our modest captain, our colorful and deepened the life of this university and preserved its untainted the 'stalling spirit of liberty,'" said President Conant in honoring his predecessor.

3000 AT EXERCISES

Incidentally, he was perpetuating the Harvard tradition of summing up the career of the recipient in a single, pithy sentence. As in other years, there were no academic hoods for those who received honorary degrees.

Following the Cambridge custom, they stood in their places as Dr. Conant recited their names, and when he had finished, they received from Professor Philip P. Chase, university marshal, a cylindrical case of crimson leather containing their degrees.

A throng of more than 3000 persons, parents and friends of the graduating seniors, as well as alumni, gathered for the exercises.

ELY IN BLAZE OF GLORY

The most colorful event of the morning was the arrival of Governor Joseph B. Ely in Cambridge, escorted by the dashing National Guards in their gleaming uniforms of red and blue and their Urban helmets. It was the 8th consecutive year that this troop, founded in 1835 by Governor Edward Everett, escorted the Governor of the Commonwealth from Beacon Hill to the Yard.

The day's program began at 9:45 a. m. with the black-robed commencement procession formed in

Honorary Degrees Theirs as Harvard Graduates 298th Class

DR. TAYLOR DENNETT A. LAWRENCE LOWELL DR. CHARLES F. MARTIN DR. THOMAS A. MORGAN HERBERT HASELTINE

CHARLES C. BURLINGHAM DR. HAROLD W. DODGE JAMES CONANT DR. LEE THORNDIKE JOHN DOUGLAS MERRILL

Harvard's "courageous captain" of 24 years, President Emeritus Abbott Lawrence Lowell was easily the outstanding man among the nine honored at Harvard's 298th commencement. The other eight honored were: Charles C. Burlingham, former president of the New York board of aldermen; Dr. Taylor Denness, president-elect of Williams College; Dr. Harold Willis Dodge, president of Princeton; Dr. Charles F. Martin of McGill; Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan, American Association for Advancement of Science; John Douglas Merrill, Harvard editor, and Herbert Haseltine, famous carver of domestic animals.

Henry H. Hough, U. S. N. commandant of the First Naval District; Captain C. G. Smith, U. S. N. district engineer; and Captain R. P. Schlabach, manager of the Boston navy yard in Cambridge town.

As is customary, Mayor Russell of Cambridge and Mayor Mansfield of Boston were on the platform, as was Joseph H. May, special sheriff of Middlesex County.

J. Pierpont Morgan, glass in hand, Wall Street financier, was among the Harvard alumni who returned for the class reunions. He also took part in the parade through Cambridge. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

on the platform were Bishop Emory U. Conant, William Lawrence, James Byrne and President Emeritus Lowell of Harvard. The former members of the Board of Overseers and professor emeriti were also accorded seats of honor. There were 30 of them.

The ecclesiastical world was further represented by the Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, rector of Trinity and member of the Harvard Board of Presidents, and by the ministers of old Cambridge, the Revs. Raymond C. C. Leslie, Glenn, William L. Worcester, John H. McLean and Dr. Francis B. Murphy.

President John A. Conant, of Tufts, represented the non-Harvard members of the Board of Overseers, brief orations in Latin and English, were delivered by Paul L. MacKendrick, 34, of Rindfield; Reginald G. Buehler, 30, of Yale; R. A. M. Harvard, 20, of Williams town, and Malcolm A. Hoffman, 24, of White Plains, N. Y.

MacKendrick delivered the usual greetings in Latin; Buehler paid a tribute to the humane philosophy and the teaching of the late Irving Abbot, and Hoffman spoke on the value of the critical faculty.

Following these orations, the degrees were conferred.

The A. B. degree Summa Cum Laude, was awarded Meyer Howard Abrams, Long Branch, N. J.; Edward Leslie, Cambridge, Mass.; Daniel Joseph, Hartford, Ct.; Robert Boyd, Boston, Mass.; Donald C. Carlson, Crest, Cambridge; Oscar Bush Davis, Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Edward Leslie, Cambridge, Mass.; John Thomas Stephens, Irvington, N. J.; and John William Walsh, Jr., Quincy.

Playful Whale Lifts Ship in Air; Was Crew Scared?

Yarmouth, N. S., June 21.—The crew of the auxiliary schooner Margerie E. described today how their vessel was almost lifted out of the sea by a cruising whale which came up for air at the wrong time.

One of the crew said: "The night was clear and all of us except the watch were in our bunks."

"Suddenly there was a crash that threw three men from their bunks. We thought we had been rammed by a ship. Out we scrambled the moment dawn. In the swirling water alongside we were amazed to see the huge form of what looked like a whale."

SOCIETY TOAST AWAITS NAVY AT NEWPORT

Fashionable Colony to Play the Host to 'King Sailor'

Newport, R. I., June 21.—Society folk and naval officials were clearing Newport's "deck" today for the biggest summer influx of the navy in history.

This season, Uncle Sam's sailor will be the toast of the city, and, in the many entertainments being arranged, he will rub elbows with the elite of this fashionable playground.

Throughout the summer there are expected to arrive in Newport 11 battleships, 10 destroyers, 30 cruisers, 8 submarines, a aircraft carrier and a military of other smaller craft.

The season will bring thousands of officers and men. The first groups arriving yesterday and last night on the Argonne, Relief, Neches, Melville, Trent, Medusa and Sand.

Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander-in-chief of the fleet, will arrive on the New Mexico with the battleship force on Friday. The ship expected are the battleships Pennsylvania, California, West Virginia, Tennessee, Colorado, Maryland, New York, Arkansas, Texas and Mississippi.

State Senator William H. Vanderbilt is chairman of the program committee for the summer, and other committee chairmen are: Entertainment, Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice of Boston; flowers, Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt; music, Gustav J. F. White, and reception, Mrs. Moses Taylor.

Bite by Hot Dog Wins $5000

New York, June 21.—A pretty model was $5000 richer, today, for having lost an encounter with a hot dog which bit her.

In deciding awarding Jeanne Dennault the judgment against the hot dog purveyor, Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins described the encounter in these words:

"The plaintiff, in that festive spirit incident to a visit to the beach, purchased from the defendants three of those plebian, but popular, hot dogs, commonly known as 'hot dogs.' The plaintiff took one bite and then another and followed by a third and made an operation on Miss Dennault's throat necessary."

While turmoil was becoming more noticeable, a Cabinet crisis also had developed and it was this, chiefly, that took Hitler to New York for the conference with Hindenburg.

MORGENTHAU IN OUSTER THREAT

By International News Service

Washington, June 21.—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today demanded that Treasury officers resign either their political party or their office, and will hammer the resignation of political party officers by Sept. 1.

"It seems to me that holding of any such political party office is not compatible with the public interest and will hamper the officer or employee in the effective discharge of his governmental duties," Morgenthau said.

In a blunt letter addressed to heads of bureau and divisions in the department, Morgenthau called for action in resignations from political party offices by Sept. 1.

"It seems to me that holding of any such political party office is not compatible with the public interest and will hamper the officer or employee in the effective discharge of his governmental duties," Morgenthau said.

NORMA LAWYER TRAPS SAUL ON LETTERS

By JAMES J. SMITH
Boston Evening American Staff
Correspondent

Dedham Courthouse, June 21.—Close questioning on the letters he had said Norma Birmingham Miller wrote in New York after the Needham murders and holding, brought frequent clashes today between Saul Messenger and his cross-examiner, Attorney George A. Douglas, Norma's counsel.

Mrs. Miller, bride of the convicted Murton Miller, sat placidly by as her attorney drew an admission that Messenger, former boyfriend and schoolmate of Murton, never actually saw Norma write a letter.

The gaze of the bride met that of her husband's onlooker friend for the first time on this, the second day of Norma's trial on charges of being an accessory after the murders and robbery. It was just for a moment, when she stood and Saul was asked to make formal identification of Norma as the one about whom he testified.

Cross-examination by Douglas was chiefly on the letters that Saul testified yesterday were written by Norma and then given to him while he acted as mail liaison man between the Millers in New York and Abe Faber in Boston.

Messenger Says Murt Was His Best Friend

Court convened at 10:45 a. m. and Saul Messenger was called to the stand for continuation of cross-examination by Attorney Douglas.

Messenger admitted that he and Murton lived together for a week in Washington after they left William and Mary College in 1931.

Q—You never told that before? A—I did not ever brought up before. There was nothing to be said.

"I didn't ask you that and don't be looking at the district attorney," said Douglas.

Q—Did you tell the district attorney that you and Murton lived together in Washington? A—I am not sure, but I think I did.

After the week in Washington, Murton left and Messenger remained for two more weeks before he went to New York, he continued.

Q—Did he live with you in New York? A—No.

Q—How many times did he visit you in New York? A—Altogether about five times.

Q—Did he correspond with you regularly? A—Yes.

Q—He told you his plans and you told him yours? A—He didn't have any plans to tell.

Q—During the time you have known Murton Miller—15 years ago—did you find him to be a domineering man? A—I always thought he was quiet.

Q—Did you have any fights with him? A—No.

Q—In other words he was your closest friend? A—Yes.

First Time He Saw Norma Was In N. Y.

Q—When was the last time you saw him in New York? A—When

Crowds Again Watch Bride Go to Her Battle for Liberty in Dedham

DEPUTY SHERIFF CALDWELL NORMA MILLER MATRON SHEDD A throng of motorists that filled the Dedham courthouse and the square in front of the building again today watched Norma Miller arrive for the second day of her trial as an accessory after the Needham Trust Co. killings. Norma is denoted by the arrow. The bride of Murton Miller, doomed killer, plans to take the stand as her own star witness when the deand had dinner with them? A—Yes.

"It Was Her Letter, She Signed It"

Q—You and your fiancée were their guests? A—Yes.

Q—You never saw her write a letter? A—No.

Q—From your own knowledge you can't say that she wrote the letter which was her letter? A—Well, I know it.

Q—You never saw her write a letter? A—That's right.

Q—Will you tell the jury that from your own knowledge that she wrote the letter? A—All I know is that it was signed by her.

Q—If Murton Miller sent that letter and signed Norma's name to it would you say it was her letter? A—I know Murton's writing.

Q—Will you tell the jury that you can recognize the letter as her handwriting? A—To the best of my knowledge it is.

Q—You say you didn't sign it? A—No.

Q—You don't know? You are not a handwriting expert? A—No.

Douglas questioned Saul closely concerning the size of the hotel room where he and Murton and Norma were conversing on Feb. 10.

Messenger agreed that the room was about 15 by 15 feet.

Q—Was there a bathroom in the suite? A—Yes.

Q—Don't you know that the suite had a bathroom and took a bath while you were talking with her?

Murt Laughed In Telling of Deaths

Q—No you didn't take this story of the robbery seriously? A—No.

Q—We laughed as he was telling it. Q—It didn't take you that long—30 minutes—to tell the story to the jury. A—We talked about other things in between. It was in a joking way.

Q—This whole talk you had with him while his wife was there was in a joking manner? A—No far as I was concerned.

Q—And as far as Murton Miller was concerned? A—We both laughed quite a few times.

Q—His wife didn't sit down beside you? A—She sat by Murt a few times.

Q—When she said, as you say, to her husband "don't talk so much" that was while he was laughing? A—No, when he was telling me of the Needham job.

Q—Who told you to say that? A—Nobody.

Q—When did you first tell that to the district attorney. A—When I first came here last March.

Made to Remember Yesterday's Time

Q—You haven't talked with him since about that conversation? A—No.

Q—You talked with the district attorney yesterday, didn't you? A—Yes.

Q—How long? A—I don't recall.

Q—You're pretty good at remembering time, why can't you remember what happened yesterday when you recall so accurately what happened last February? A—I don't know with him five or ten minutes.

Q—You remember the exact time you spent discussing the case with her husband? A—Yes.

Q—Mr. Douglas asked you about that again yesterday? A—Yes.

Q—Mr. Douglas asked you to tell the jury that Norma was there when you discussed this case, that right, isn't it? A—Yes.

Q—You said that Norma said to "Murt" stop talking. Why were the exact words you used yesterday?

A—I said Norma told him not to be talking so much.

"Murt Kept Laughing During His Talk"

Q—He appeared to be out of his head? A—We were talking and joking all morning? A—I was used to his wild stories.

Q—Was she sitting down then when she said "Don't talk so much"? A—Yes.

Q—Then she got up and walked around the room? A—She did after a while.

Q—And he kept on talking? A—Yes.

Q—He laughed just as much? A—He laughed two or three times.

Messenger said there was no doubt in his mind about the exactness of his quotation of Norma. He said to the best of his recollection the three, Murton, Norma and himself, left the hotel together and he didn't see them again until he met them outside the Hotel Edison on February 16 in response to a telegram from Murton.

Q—When did you ask him for money? A—On the 18th.

Q—After he had told you he had robbed a bank? A—That's right.

Q—You knew he had the money from the bank? A—I didn't believe his story.

"Murters Had Been Detailed to Me Then"

Q—You know that it is vital to your safety to say that you didn't believe the story when you accepted the money? A—It might be.

Q—You know it is? A—I am telling the truth about it.

Q—And when you relayed the story you knew that he had robbed a bank and killed men? (Dewey objected to the question but Judge Brown ruled it admissible.)

Q—Answer that yes or no? A—I can't answer it yes or no.

Q—Why can't you? A—I want to bring out the fact that I didn't believe his story.

Q—At least, when he told the story you listened to it? A—That's the truth.

Q—And you got all the details in your mind as to the robbery and murder? A—That's true.

Q—You go in the extent of saying that Norma Miller was there and heard what you said? A—Yes.

Q—That's the fact you stop saying that's wired him asking Murton's whereabouts.

He said he sent word that Murton had left New York for an unknown destination. He admitted he said nothing in previous testimony about the telegram he sent because, he said, "I was not asked about it."

"I have nothing to hide," he added.

Q—Did you believe that part of Murton's story in which he said he robbed the Needham bank, so you asked him for some? A—For a loan, yes.

Q—Didn't you tell him that for $250 you'd take the letters from him and shift them anyway he wanted?—I did not.

Admits He Believed Part of Confession

Q—He already told you he laid the Needham money and you asked him for only $12? A—I asked him to loan me $12.

Q—And you say you thought he was going to Washington on a vacation and that you didn't believe his story of the Needham robbery? A—Yes.

Q—Did you think that was a prudent time to ask a man for $12 when he was taking his wife on a vacation? A—We never waited for any special time to ask a loan from each other.

Douglas finally obtained an admission that he had asked Murton for a loan of $12.

Douglas demanded.

"I Borrowed Money Then Sent a Wire"

Judge Brown ruled "That's true" was a responsive answer.

Q—You didn't believe it when his wife said stop talking so much. You thought that was part of the joke? A—No, not a part of the joke.

Messenger testified that he was at home when the telegram arrived from Murton telling him to try at the Hotel Edison. He said he was not expecting the telegram.

After a short recess Douglas resumed cross-examination of Messenger as to the "loan."

Messenger admitted he got $125 on February 11 or 12 or on February 15.

BYRD BRAVES PERILS OF ANTARCTIC

Little America and the South Polar regions are perilous places to stay away from, according to Thomas C. T. Buckley, 25, of Geneva, N. Y., who has returned from Little America, where he went as a dog driver and seaman with Admiral Byrd.

Interviewed this morning at 333 Marlboro street, Back Bay, where he is visiting friends, Buckley told a thrilling story of battles with ice, snow and wind at the bottom of the world.

Driver of the first dog team to go ashore at Little America, Buckley barely escaped a horrible death almost immediately after landing when he broke through a snow bridge as he ran after his dogs and plunged into a 100-foot open water crevice.

"The dogs had not been in harness for almost four months and were quite unmanageable, so that instead of wearing skis, I ran after them," said Buckley. "Realizing the danger, I followed some others, who did wear skis as they crossed a snow bridge. They got over all right, but I broke through."

"That was no fun. It may have been cold, but I perspired plenty. Anyway, I managed to catch myself on a projection from one wall, and was rescued. My first swim is your last down there."

"I returned from Little America on the ice cutter Bear by way of New Zealand and the Falklands, leaving the Bay of Whales, February 14, when illness in my family made it vital that I come home at once."

"But just to start home is not to get there, when you start from the Bay of Whales in February. It was only a fifty-fifty chance that we would get through. In six hours, eight inches of ice formed over the passage we expected to use in beginning our return."

"If we had waited a few hours longer before leaving we would have been frozen in and obliged to stay all winter. In the spring our ship would probably have been crushed in the grinding ice. It was a close shave."

On reaching New Zealand, first stop on the return trip, Buckley went to a hotel and then he took a bath. Then he took a second bath. Then he took a third bath. In fact, he took ten baths.

"No one ever takes a bath in Little America," he explained. "In fact, Esquimaux are washed when they are born, but never again as long as they live. When you go to Rome, do as the Romans do."

1066 FEET
That Admiral Byrd was very sorry to lose Buckley, who had been of great value to the expedition, is evident from a letter written him by Byrd when he was obliged to leave.

"I regret very much that you will not be with us for the rest of our stay here," wrote the admiral, especially mentioning the "excellent work" done by Buckley in unloading stores and handling the dogs.

Back With Polar Trinkets

Thomas C. T. Buckley of New York, dog sled driver with Admiral Byrd in Little America, was in Boston today on a visit. After presenting Alice V. Burrage, society deb, with trinkets of his stay in the Antarctic, he recounted his perilous trips with the explorer for her and his interviewers. He told of his many escapes from death and ended by saying "it's a good place to stay away from." (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

5 NURSES HURT IN TAXI CRASH

Five nurses attached to the Beth Israel Hospital were injured this morning at Harrow and Homestead street, Roxbury, when a taxi in which they were riding overturned in collision with another car.

The girls were pinned under the machine and it was with much difficulty that police officers and pedestrians extricated them. They were taken to the hospital where they are employed and treated for contusions, abrasions and lacerations.

The girls gave their names to police as Miss Florence Kerr, 30, of Rutherford street; Miss Mae Moscovitz, 25, of Nassau street; Miss Cella Surkin, 24, of Sanborn street; Miss Eva Sanderfeld, 23, of Devon street, and Miss Zola Selig, 21, of Walnut avenue, all of Roxbury.

Dr. Joseph Devine, police surgeon, administered first aid and the girls were taken to Beth Israel Hospital. Miss Moscovitz and Miss Surkin were more seriously hurt than the others, both sustaining severe lacerations.

Norma Relaxes as Second Day of Trial Starts

By FRED DOYLE
Dedham Courthouse, June 21—It was a brighter day in every way for Norma Brighten Miller who entered the courtroom shortly after 10 a. m. minus the formality of hat and gloves.

Infinitely less tense than was her attitude at her trial debut, Norma sat relaxed in a wooden chair at the bar, even crossing her legs in a more comfortable position.

She was wearing the same simple, becoming blue dress with the white polka dots, that gives her a quiet, girlish dignity, to a courtroom occupied by older women in flamboyant yellow, pink, greens and brilliantly-colored prints.

Until her father, Rev. Norman Brighten of Mattit, wearing the same gray suit, but a fresh tie, bent over to greet her, Norma, from the moment of her entrance, continued to converse with her constant companion, Mrs. Richard P. Rhoads, the all matron, who occupied the seat to her left.

FATHER GREETS NORMA
Deputy Sheriff Leverett P. Caldwell, Norma's guard, switched from a position beside her to the corner of the first-row bench, directly behind her and next to her father.

The latter arrived with his second wife and his son, Clarence. Almost immediately he went to Norma's side, his expression leading to his tautness. A slight smile came over his face as he talked with Norma.

As he went back to his seat, Norma's stepmother, a brief chat with the young bride.

She was followed to Norma's side by Clarence, her brother, who sat genuinely devoted to her. He talked

ALL GASOLINES ALIKE? DON'T BELIEVE IT!

Some people believe there is no difference in gasolines. To disprove this idea, once and for all, Gulf made a series of 12 power tests on famous hills, in which 33 different gasolines competed.

WHAT furnishes the toughest test for the power of any gasoline? A hill!

This is why Gulf picked 12 famous American hills as locations for its power tests. On each of these hills, leading brands of gasoline, bought from local service stations, competed to see which could propel a car and heavy load farthest up hill in high gear before the motor stalled.

Here is presented the evidence gathered from these tests—certified by a notary public—evidence which proves, beyond question, that there is a real difference in gasolines.

X-9ERS TO SEE THE RED SOX PLAY NEXT MONDAY

Another great day is in store for members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club, the boys' and girls' organization of the Boston Evening American.

Through the kindness of Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins of the Boston Red Sox, the young stars will be guests next Monday afternoon at the game to be played between the Red Sox and Walter Johnson's Cleveland Indians.

They will be admitted to the game free on display of membership card and badge at Fenway Park.

Now it is up to the members to get their cards ready and their badges pinned in preparation to seeing a baseball game between two fighting teams, each carrying many stars of the national game.

The invitation to attend the game will be another thrilling event for members of the club, now composed of more than 75,000 boys and girls.

More than 10,000 members will recall the gala day at Fenway Park—the day they enjoyed the circus and the treasure hunt. Nearly 800 prizes were awarded in the treasure hunt.

And then the Easter Egg Hunt held at Franklin field, at which 25,000 smiling youngsters vied in the hunt for 500 prizes, was another time that members will never forget.

So it's up to members to shine their badges and hike to Fenway Park next Monday to participate in another special day staged for their enjoyment.

WALSH'S FACES BATTLE OVER LEADERSHIP OF PARTY

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Senator Walsh's leadership of the Massachusetts Democratic, unbroken for more than two decades, will be sharply challenged in the September primary if plans underfoot are carried into execution.

Edward P. Barry of Boston, who served as lieutenant governor in 1934 in the first term of Walsh as governor, may be the man who will contest against the senior senator for the Democratic nomination.

He admits that he has been approached, that the idea intrigues him and that his answer will be ready in a day or two.

It was this answer that Barry's availability was decided upon after Major James T. Duane of Framingham, former state commander of the Legion, had been invited to make the run and declined the honor. Duane had been told that he need not worry over a campaign check. The movement to give Senator Walsh a battle, it is understood, emanates from sources close to former Mayor Curley. Curley's supporters are bitter against Walsh and blame him equally with the Governor for the results of the Worcester convention.

BEATEN BY SWIFT

Former Lieutenant Governor Barry, in addition to an intense dislike of the convention system of picking candidates, has an axe to grind on his own account against the Walsh-Swift combination.

Two years ago Barry was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor in the field of seven. Barry was runner up in that contest losing the nomination to John E. Swift, now a superior court judge, by a margin of 171 votes.

The other five in that contest were Raymond A. Fitzmaurice, Cambridge, former Senator Will former City Councilor Frank E. Kelly of Dorchester, John F. Sullivan of Boston and Mayor Michael O'Neill of Everett.

Swift got 69,674 votes in the primary, Barry, 68,607; O'Neill, 31,667; Fitzgerald, 30,152; Kelly, 31,667; Fitzmaurice, 19,237, and Malley, 18,531.

"BARRIED," SAYS BARRY

Barry felt then, and is of the same opinion today, that several of the candidates were put into the field to block what seemed to him to be a walk-over over Swift. Near the close of the campaign, the Walsh-Swift combination was openly doing everything it could to bring about the nomination of Swift.

"There is no question but that a job was done on me in that campaign," Barry said today. "The real inside story is that I didn't want to run, but I felt that a Boston man, or one near Boston, who had rendered conspicuous party service was entitled to the nomination. I allowed my name to be presented. I supposed that Ely, Walsh and others would agree on somebody and that there would be united support for a candidate."

"I am satisfied that many of the names put into that fight were for the purpose of dividing the forces in Boston. Because of this I carried a vote by only 16,000 when I had always carried it before by 40,000. I could be sure, I had hoped that the voters would get behind one man. I remember, Mayor O'Neill of Everett asked for such a conference. In the campaign, I made but two speeches and spent $350 on the radio. You know you can't say much for $350."

SUPPORTED BY CURLEY

The first time I ran for lieutenant governor I was disgusted over the selection of Long, a politician, because of his wallet, in that fight in 1913, the only leader that was with me was James M. Curley, then a member of Congress. I supported Curley for mayor afterwards.

"If you compared the vote given Walsh for governor with the vote I received for lieutenant governor you will see it was very close. I didn't want to run for re-election but Walsh told me it would be said that I was dissatisfied with the ticket. So I sacrificed my business and again became a candidate. In that contest I was nudged out by Grafton Cushing."

"In the primary campaign of two years ago, however, I have reason to believe that certain Republican money was used. In the election, where the present G. O. P. gubernatorial nominee was chosen as lieutenant governor, Swift's defeat can be accounted for by resentment of Boston people dissatisfied with his dictatorial candidacy."

FRUSTRATES CURLEY

"If Ely had run for a third term, and I wrote him he ought to, there would be no opposition to the ticket and we would have a state without intervention or convention, a ticket which could have swept into office."

"Here I want to say that there has been a question about what Curley has done for the party. To him belongs a great part of the credit for the huge registrations that have been piled up in the last six or eight years. Largely because of his efforts the Democrats have been gaining at the rate of 50,000 a year, much of it being young blood."

"But because Smith and Rosen-placed in a respirator and remained there until death intervened mercifully today.

It was only a very strong heart and constitution that enabled the girl to live as long as she did. Doctors today expressed amazement at her battle for life, knowing as they did how hopeless it was.

Her death was the second from the dead-end rabies in the Greater Boston area within two weeks.

Last week, seven-year-old Norma Brewer, of Marion street, Lynn, contracted the disease, contracting from the bite of a dog in Mid-dleton six weeks ago.

OTHER VICTIMS RECOVERING

Two other Winthrop children were also bitten by the chow which caused the death of the Keating girl. They are Edward L. Housman and William Ward. Both are reported on the road to recovery and are still receiving Pasteur treatment.

The dog, the property of John A. Orrall, of Floyd street, Winthrop, was shot. Members of Orrall's family are also receiving Pasteur treatment.

A short time before Arlene's death, an Arlington boy, James Reagan, 4, of Mystic Valley park, was bitten by a dog. It was said to be a Boston terrier.

Reagan was bitten in the face by a Boston terrier owned by John Lee, of River street, Arlington. The same is being confined for examination for rabies and the dog is being kept in a kennel for preventive measures in many communities.

Bostonians to Join 'Tarzan' in Vampire Bat Hunt

A group of Bostonians will accompany Sacha Simel, known as the blue-eyed, bearded "Tarzan of the Brazilian Jungle," into the wilds this summer to bring back vampire bats, a giant armadillo and a red wolf.

This is not a scavenger in any sense, the armadillo and the red wolf being even harder to capture than the nightbird of an ex-governor.

Sacha will leave New York on Saturday for the jungle. It became known today and with him on the hunt will be two lawyers, one of them John K. Howard of Boston, a doctor of geology and a Yale student.

Later, several Boston and New York business men seeking diversion from the cares of big business, will join the junglers at $1000 a pop, for that is the price of the package charged by Sacha for making each of his associates a South American.

To the brain is much shorter, bringing death very quickly.

News of Arlene Keating's death in Winthrop brought added force to the campaign to capture all unteached and untrained dogs.

Police started this campaign yesterday and picked up a number of animals. They are to be examined and shot immediately if they show traces of the infection.

Action is also being taken in other Greater Boston communities to prevent the possible spreading of rabies. The warning of the state health department that all dogs should be restrained and inoculated against the disease brought agitation for preventive measures in many communities.

NO MORE "GREEN" ALE DECLARE BOSON SPORT FANS

The issue of "green" ale vs. fully-aged ale is clearly settled wherever Boston sport fans gather. Every fan questioned voiced in favor of the fully aged product. That's why the honors are fast lining up for Harvard Ale—the ale that's never sold "green."

"You say ale and beer must be made in separate buildings?" "Yes," Dr. Richard H. P. Juers, Brewmaster of the Harvard Brewing Company tells visiting reporters, "because they are made with different yeast cultures. It takes a large brewery such as ours—with separate plants for brewing and aging—to produce fine old ale and beer."

"I'll say people are getting wise," says Libby, owner of a popular tavern in East Boston. "We're selling more Harvard Draught Beer every day—because New Englanders like beer and ale that are fully aged."

HARVARD BREWING CO., LOWELL, MASS. Boston Warehouse, 340 C St., Tel. South Boston 3705

Man, what a collar!—Notice the rich, creamy foam. Every glass of Harvard is full-bodied and invigorating. Sure, Harvard tastes better—it is aged two to three times longer than ordinary ales.

DEFENSE RESTS IN DONNELLY HEARING

The defense in the case of John J. Donnelly, charged with armed conspiracy to commit murder, rested today in Suffolk Superior Court.

No rebuttal evidence was presented and Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for Donnelly, presented a series of motions, principally for directed verdicts. Arguments on the motions were started after a short recess. After the ruling of the court, the case was continued to August 14 for the prosecution to rest its case.

DONNELLY TAKES STAND

Donnelly, who had been in custody since his arrest on June 10, took the stand today in the Suffolk Superior Court. He was sworn in by Judge J. J. Connelley and testified that he was with the other defendants at the time of the murder of Edward J. Connelley, a Boston police officer, on June 10, 1933.

Donnelly testified that he was with the other defendants at the time of the murder of Edward J. Connelley, a Boston police officer, on June 10, 1933.

Shriners Will End Sessions Tonight

Minneapolis, June 21—Noble of the Blue Shrine of St. James, a well known actor, will appear in a play at the Minneapolis Shrine of St. James tonight.

Donnelly testified that he was with the other defendants at the time of the murder of Edward J. Connelley, a Boston police officer, on June 10, 1933.

Whiskers Bar Diploma

Vincent Buckley, 16, has promised somebody (he won't say whom) that he won't shave for a year. Consequently, he will not attend the graduation exercises tonight at Chelsea high school to get his diploma. He says his appearance might cause untidy comments. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Boy Drowns in Reservoir
Drowned, June 21—Herbert R. Hawkins, Jr., three, drowned at the Red Top Country Club in Weymouth.

GRADUATION IS LOST TO BOY

Because a 16-year-old boy decided to grow a beard, his public graduation and receipt of his junior high school diploma was in doubt today.

Vincent Buckley, of Arlington street, Chelsea, member of the William J. "Irish" school class of Chelsea, is the boy.

His class members will receive the diploma tonight at graduation exercises. Hardly any other boy in the entire class of 300 shaves, but Buckley possesses a full beard.

Asked if he would shave for the graduation exercises the boy said he had promised to wear the beard for a year, and the year would not be up until some time later.

HOSPITAL LOAN BILL KILLED

Long battling over financing a proposed new wing in the North Quincy High school and a new building at Quincy City Hospital was ended today with the city council having refused to provide the money.

At its meeting, the council killed off both orders and appropriations, totaling $175,000, to end the battle in which charges were thrown that an anti-administration faction of the City Hospital staff wanted the hospital work deferred until a new administration could get credit.

Another measure which has been under discussion, a program of street and sidewalk repair work to provide employment for the unemployed, was authorized by the city council. This project is expected to run up to $200,000 and bids will be advertised immediately.

Man Is Jailed in Welfare Swindle

John Maratano, 31, of Antur street, at Boston's Pleasant street today in municipal court to face charges of $55 from the Boston Welfare department, and was sentenced to three months in the house of correction by Judge J. J. Connelley.

Sergeant Thomas F. Lyons testified that Maratano received the money from the welfare department on June 22 to Feb. 23 of this year. During that period, Maratano was allegedly working for a Chinese shoe factory.

State House News

A resolution providing for the creation of a special commission to investigate the subject of unemployment insurance reserves and benefits was put through all its readings today in the House under suspension of rules. The House had adopted it previously.

The House vote and means committee today reported the new law which will be without change as it came from the committee on Judiciary. Representative Michael Jordan of Lawrence and John Lyons of Brockton dissented from the favorable report.

The bill authorizing the licensing and conduct of the game called "Volley" or "Golf" was also reported. In which prizes are won by chance, and where proceeds go to charitable, religious and fraternal purposes, was ordered to a third reading in the House.

Meanwhile the two children played as usual on the grounds of her Lake Tahoe cottage, unaware of the fate of their mother. The child, kept constantly on their mother's mind, was strengthened when news of the mother's fate became known.

BOARD MAY 'DRY' LAWRENCE

The State Alcohol Beverage Control Commission today threatened to prohibit all sales of liquor in Lawrence after July 1, if the city does not cut down the licenses to the statutory limit of 50, for that municipality.

According to the commission, the Lawrence licensing authorities have exceeded their quota by about 30 per cent.

"Only nine days remain for us to approve or disapprove licenses issued by your board," the commission said.

"We desire to inform you that unless you accept the responsibility which is properly yours and reduce the number of your licenses within this time, the sale of liquor, other than wine and malt beverages, in the City of Lawrence after July 1 probably will be prohibited."

Medford Youth O.K. for West Point

Washington, June 21—Representative Wesley D. (Massachusetts), said he had been informed by army officials that William J. Bowen of Medford, Mass., had passed all qualifying examinations and would enter the United States Military Academy at West Point on July 2.

Laughs at Baby's Death Win Decree

Mrs. Emma May Barnes of Somerville was granted a divorce on the ground of cruelty after she testified before Judge Stevens in the divorce court that her husband, William, laughed at her and played the phonograph when she cried over the death of their first baby.

Club Programs

At the hotels today and tonight—Touraine, Boston Lions' Club weekly luncheon in the main room at 12 1/2-Copple Place, meeting of the Eastern Club in parlor A at 7 and Berkowitz-Brenner, wedding ceremony, reception and dinner in the ballroom and for a novel 8.

Kennore, Teachers College Alumni dinner at 8 and Court Marquette, Daughters of America, banquet at 8:30—New Ocean House, Swampscott, meeting, banquet and prize drills of American Legion Auxiliary.

Musical supper in the garden of the Women's City Club of Boston at 40 Beacon street at 8—a guest violinist will give a musical interlude.

Carnival of Dorchester Lower Mills Council, Knights of Columbus, at the clubhouse grounds, 36 Dorchester street, Dorchester, will run through the night—Albert Sullivan, chairman of the committee.

St. Mary's School, Charlestown, tonight—reception and banquet in the Parish Hall—Reverend Frederick Alchin in charge.

MRS. DALL TELLS KIDNAP FEARS

Edna Nell June 21—Mrs. Anna Roswell Dall here to day said that she is afraid for the safety of her children, six and three, she said, Mrs. Dall said she feared "some female or kidnaper."

Mrs. Dall refused to amplify her remarks further.

She came here last week to establish a residence preparatory to filing divorce proceedings against her husband. Her action started White House circles humming with rumors of her new romance with a Washington newspaperman. These were quickly denied, however.

Meanwhile the two children played as usual on the grounds of her Lake Tahoe cottage, unaware of the fate of their mother. The child, kept constantly on their mother's mind, was strengthened when news of the mother's fate became known.

BANDITS EARLY, THEFT FAILS

Two armed bandits in a burglar, attempted today to steal the weekly payroll of a Webster post leather shoe factory, but were foiled because they arrived an hour too early.

The attempted heist of the payroll occurred half an hour before noon, while the payroll money was not due until half an hour after noon.

Stuffed, the bandits fired in the direction of the factory. Police sent out a telephone alarm and two automobile loads of patrolmen were rushed from South Boston headquarters, armed with machine guns and riot guns, to close the route.

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

It is difficult to write columns when you are on the go from an eight o'clock breakfast to a midnight supper, punctuated by a steady traipsing around from pillar to post all over Cambridge, from the Union to the Yard, to the House, to the Stadium, to the hall field, back to Kirkland House for the evening supper and a third evening of dancing.

It is even more difficult to write deathless prose on an exclusive diet of what might be called graduation ceremonial virtuals. One class brothes was heard to remark mournfully that he had been living for two days on chicken salad and had begun to cackle. And a kind of sinuous waving motion occasionally observable might be attributed to salmon mayonnaise and the swimming motion it engenders.

There are moments when one thinks longfully of corn beef and cabbage—eaten sitting down—and without having to elbow through hungry and affectionate crowds to get it.

I am going to save myself labor today by reprinting the comic honorary degrees bestowed by our 25th anniversary class on sundry distinguished of our fellowship. Some of them went to nationally known figures. They were awarded by William M. Rand, class treasurer.

Theodore Roosevelt—like Nimrod a mighty hunter before the Lord. Explorer of the Himalayas, who brought back to America the rare Ovis Pika Negri, which is the kind of sheep you count when you can't find the mythical three-toed Pando—waterfall that is. By virtue of the authority delegated to me by the Class of 1909 I confer on Theodore Roosevelt the degree of H. G. D., Hereditary Gelter of the Democratic Goat.

Hans V. Kallenborn—the radiant voice of the radio. The Ames and Andy of political comment, the Walter Lippmann of the air waves. When Kallenborn edits the news it stays edited. The only radio star who doesn't plug a stream-lined car or a new tooth paste. By virtue of the authority delegated to me by the Class of 1909 I confer on Hans V. Kallenborn the degree of D. C. N.—Debunker of Current News.

Awarded in absentia to Kallenborn's son, he having sailed for Russia Wednesday morning.

Arthur C. Frost—American Consul General in India, holding the record for the standing long jump from there to here. The man who traveled the longest distance to be here today, from India's coral strand to Cambridge's gritty asphalt. The bosom friend of Mahatma Gandhi. The only man in the class who has lived in 40 foreign countries in 25 years, thus always avoiding paying his bill. By virtue of the authority delegated to me by the Class of 1909 I confer on Arthur C. Frost the degree of H. J. D.—The Harvard Jumping Bean.

Abbott Lawrence Lowell—who was lucky enough to have 1909 as the first class whose diploma he signed—most fortunate possessor of a fortunate administration. Like Jack Horner he stuck in his thumb and pulled out silver plumbing. Harvard is now the House that Jack built—and Lowell collected the jack. He found Harvard brick and left it marble. He found Harvard thick and left it thin—also marble. He recognized the university of Eliot. By the theory of concentration of courses, the tutorial system, the house system, and the emphasis on scholarship, he recreated university education in America and made of Harvard College an institution of learning from which most members of the Class of 1909 couldn't possibly have got a degree. By virtue of the authority delegated to me by the Class of 1909 I confer on Abbott Lawrence Lowell the degree of Harvard's Favorite Son and vote him the member of 1909 most likely to succeed.

They also awarded one to your humble correspondent, but since it was highly unlikely I would not repeat it, even if I had it. And it was all about Bos's daughters and secretaries, and Beatrice Fairfax and advice to the lovelorn, and snobs, especially snobs. But as I always say, in the hangman's house one does not mention the rope! And the degree of M. A., Matrimonial Adviser, I consider distinctly an effort to undermine my usefulness to this column.

There was a be-ribboned diploma went with it, but nothing was written on it. I can write my own ticket—which is what every graduate wishes he could do.

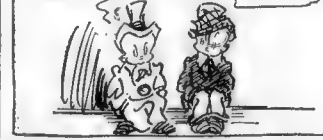

POUND OF STEAK LEADS TO CELL

For a pound of beefsteak, Harry J. Stanley, 34, Massachusetts avenue, Read, Mass., today faced a ten-day sojourn in the Middlesex house of correction.

Stanley was found guilty of stealing the steak by Ralph Ralph Smith in East Cambridge. Evidence showed that Stanley left the restaurant where he ate with the steak attached to his belt. He said he had not money to pay for the steak or the $2.50 imposed by the court by reason of which he faced the ten-day jail session.

SUSPECT SENT TO HOSPITAL

Faced with an indictment of poison murder, Samuel J. Catino, 33, of East Cambridge, was committed to the Psychopathic hospital for observation today.

Catino was committed for observation after a report from agents of the state department of mental diseases. He had been held at East Cambridge jail on an indictment which charged him with the poison murder of Miss Alice G. Porter, 35, Medford, former Boston school teacher.

Judge Raul H. Beaudreau ordered Catino's commitment in Middlesex superior court. The court ordered another report made on the prisoner's mental condition made by July 14.

Invalid Pupils Get Diplomas

Lying in their beds at the House of Good Samaritans today, a Jamaica Plain boy and girl received their grammar school diplomas.

They were Frances Robinson, 14, and Joseph Cunningham, 13 years old. Both have been bedridden for more than a year at the home on Dinwiddie street, suffering from heart ailments.

Mrs. Grace R. Corrigan, the hospital school teacher, is largely responsible for their graduation. She tutored them each day.

The joy of the boy and girl will be complete when they return home soon. Next fall both expect to enter high school. Today also marks the completion of 12 years of service as a school teacher for Mr. Corrigan.

Children Drink From Trough

A thoroughly scoured house with four bubblers ready was the solution offered today by Park Commissioner Maxton to the problem of supplying water to the little ones who play in Kincade Park, Quincy.

The question of water supply for the heated, sweating youngsters who romped about the park came to the attention of the commissioner recently on a hot day.

Robber Loots Baby's Bank

James Duffy, seven months old, slept peacefully in his carriage today unaware that a hold robber had looted his bank of $2. An armed intruder entered the home of Mrs. Olive Duffy, 359 Highland avenue, Malden, and after being refused money left with the contents of the bank and the woman's pocketbook which contained approximately $2. State Budget Claims Jump

State Costs $2,482,000

Supplementary budget recommendations, submitted today by Governor Ely to the Legislature, amounting to $2,482,000, bring the total appropriations for construction work, maintenance of state departments and other expenses, exclusive of the metropolitan district, up to $24,820,747.07, about $1,000,000 in excess of the 1933 total.

The state tax is set at $10,250,000, an increase of $1,250,000 over last year.

A reserve is set up amounting to $128,799.16 in the general fund, with the Governor expressing the hope that a substantial saving may be effected in this item.

SOLONS AWAIT RAIL PLAN

Action relative to the New England railroad situation was awaited in the Legislature today anticipating a special message from Governor Ely.

Unification of the Boston & Maine and New Haven railroads will be urged by the governor.

In his message the state chief executive is expected to urge the enactment of a statute authorizing the unification or the creation of a new railroad system to study the problem and report back his findings and recommendations for legislative action by next December.

While the message will not call for outright consolidation of the two main railroads of New England, the governor's plan involves unification of operations of the two carriers and a complete absorption of transportation activities under a consolidated management and unified the changes.

WARRANTS OUT QUINCY STARTS PWA PROJECTS

Awarding of contracts to two Quincy firms for PWA construction projects is expected to provide employment for 500 men through most of the summer and fall, it was revealed today.

The contracts, totaling $30,000, were awarded to the Quincy Lumber Co. and the F. H. Crane Co. They call for sewer construction in Squantum and Adams Street.

Work on PWA projects has been at a practical standstill in Quincy for the past month with only 15 men employed. Anticipation of the awards today brought the return of 100 men, many would be hired Monday.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

New York, June 21—New York's over-supply of left-over speakeasy restaurants hang on, hoping for some miracle that will fill them again. There are several hundred in mid-town not straining their salt.

The sudden swing from them to big hotel dining rooms seems permanent.

Even law abiding cafes grapple with the same desolation that hit legitimate theaters. The boomerang is that patrons believe that hotel restaurants, with their heavier investments, are likelier to serve a better grade of liquors. Too, the hotels have garnered the best dance orchestras.

Liquor stores also are in a quandary. Any number of them do not earn enough to pay license fees. Big department stores are not only able to undersell, but again there is the confidence inspired by old-established institutions that have proved their honesty.

New York, after years of downing inconceivably vile concoctions, has become amazingly boot-legger lery. The most noticeable result of the clean-up has been the quick death of the clip-joints, where so many were not only poisoned and bludgeoned, but often murdered.

The best backlog in the literary blaze, Harvey Allen appeared to fulfill expectations at his first New York cocktail party. One impassioned glances described him thus: "A large, simple, highly unattractive looking man, he seemed a King Canute with tides of gossip lapping silently at his feet."

With "Anthony Adverse" approaching a half million sale, Allen will rest on his oars for a year or more before beginning another. He does not look unlike Vincent Youmans, the composer.

I knew Lew Cody longer and perhaps more intimately than anyone in the movies. He was a stark worshipping but with most innate respect for the deities. He came of distinguished French-Canadian parents, studied medicine, law, and read deep on classics. I ran on to him an hour after his arrival in Paris for the first time. His French was so perfect everyone thought him Paris-born. He loved hard and gallantly on the volcano edge. Often he told me he would go out as he did—in a flash. Medically minded, he knew of a fatal valvular lesion.

Indiana has long been America's most legendary literary belt, incubating such masters as George Ade, Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson, Kin Hubbard, Robert W. Service, General Lew Wallace, Albert J. Beveridge and so many other writing stars. I thought of the Indiana halo the other day when at a table at the St. Regis were grouped Edwin C. Hall, Elmer Davis and Frank Shuts, all born and reared in Aurora, Ind., and doing their part to sustain the Hoosier tradition.

Evelyn Thaw is owner of Gibson's famous picture, "The Eternal Question," for which she was model. The black and white study became especially well known during the sensational Thaw trial and was later featured on post cards over the world. The original is the only article of sustained value Evelyn salvaged out of contact with the Thaw millions. Somebody tells me she has received an offer as high as $15,000 for it. But collectors have told her the older it becomes the more valuable. And it's not improbable some day it will demand $50,000. Thaw once coveted it.

I am told, too, that the only face-to-face between Thaw and Evelyn since their final split up took place on a Broadway corner seven years ago. It was, strangely enough, directly across from the site of the now razed Casino, the scene for her "loaders." Triumph and where she was wooed by the eccentric Pittsburgher, Evelyn stood waiting a traffic guard when he slipped out of a taxi a few feet away. He stared, beamed and in confusion bolted.

JORDAN'S PICKED TO DETHRONE SHEPARD'S ON GOLF LINKS

Belmont Spring Scene of Store Matches Tomorrow

Since the Retail Stores Four-Ball League convened at Charles River a fortnight ago, the two principal matches have been played off, and Jordan Marsh Co. enters the sixth round tomorrow afternoon at Belmont Spring Country Club with a three and one-half point lead over Mm. Filene's Sons Co.

Jordan has been playing championship golf since the start of the season, yielding only five and one-half points to opponents in five matches.

Although it suffered a severe loss when Johnny Cole quit the store to enter the brokerage business, Jordan has carried on with such success that it is now the odds-on favorite to succeed Shepard Stores as winners of the Milton City championship of the Retail Stores Four-Ball League championship.

MCCARTHY MISSING
Jordan's opponent in the fifth round tomorrow, from Filene's Co., especially of Frank Vondra, should decide to make his four-ball competitive debut.

In M. C. Balmayne and Ray Marad, Filene has one of the strongest four-ball combinations in the league. They have won consistently and will grow stronger. Although minus the service of its "ace," Jack McCarthy, who is playing in the Lake Senapee tournament with Lewis Olinball, Filene's is confident of gaining ground on Jordan.

Filene's is listed to temple with the C. P. Hovey Co., which has not been going up to her 1933 form. Captain George Sax, of Filene's, has a number of good golfers to punch his for McCarthy but, of course, none of them can measure up to the silent star.

CONRAD'S VS. SHEPARD'S
A. J. Frost, Larry Bitter or Sid Matthews will substitute for McCarthy, teaming up with Jack Egan, while Sax and Dick Ruggles, ex-junior champion of the state, will be the number two team.

Filene's will be further weakened by the slaying Jim Farclough gave Sax's handicap after learning that the Filene leader carded a 78 at South Shore.

The Conrad team, which was struggling along at a winning clip until last week at South Shore, when McCarthy tossed a 71 at Dave Moser and Rich Wagner, and Sax and Ruggles put together a better ball of 70-seven par—hopes to show up on the leaders by decisively defeating the Shepard Stores.

Bitter and White will fight it out for possession of fourth place, while Sax, Ruggles hopes to swap places with Chandler and emerge from the cellar berth for the first time this season.

Hoofs' Thunder Drums Taps for E.H.C. Meet

Brigade Rose, left, thunders down the stretch neck and neck with Fory in the Mill-race, that race feature the Raceland program at Framingham, where the Eastern Horse Club's annual meeting concluded. Brigade Rose, with a great drive to the finish, won by two lengths.

Tragedy reared its head at Raceland, when Redbridge, owned by John R. Macomber, threw Jockey J. Dawson after safely clearing the difficult Liverpool barrier. Here Dawson falls to the ground. The fall knocked the rider unconscious. He was carried from the course, and later was removed for hospital treatment.

Anxious friends lift Jockey Dawson after his spill from Redbridge, and carry him to the side of the course for first aid. He was unconscious as this picture was taken, and appeared to have sustained serious injuries. He landed heavily on his shoulder when thrown. Yachts Gather on Thames for Regatta

By E. B. Schriftgesser
Yachting's great annual spectacle on the Thames River arrives again tomorrow when hundreds of boats congregates at New London for the Harvard and Yale boat race.
Once again the color and beauty which made this nautical show famous will crown the river as the two eight pull their way down stream tomorrow evening.
Last year, when we were in the depths of the depression, the fleet at New London was a sorry reminder of what it once had been. But this year yachting has taken a decided turn for the better.
Many of the country's biggest pleasure craft are in commission again and will be moved in the lower stretches of the Thames tomorrow, through very parties.
BERMUDA RACE SUNDAY
After being tied up all last year, J. P. Morgan's famous Cornish is again in use. It is such big yacht as Vincent Astor's Nona, which Harold B. Vanderbilt's Vesta and Gertrude's three-masted schooner Atlantic.

Malden and Worcester Follow Baker Lead, Bill Night Games

By Bob Ahearn
Night baseball, a la Roger Baker, will be introduced to the fans of Malden and Worcester this week, with titles scheduled for Malden Stadium, this evening and at League Park, Worcester, Friday.

Wayland Rosebuds, tied for league leadership with Fraser All-race, play a double-header at Malden Billy Brichard's Newcomers club meets the Rosebuds in the first game at 8:15 p. m.

Adjoining with a much improved club since the addition of school and college players, meets Bill Baker's nine in the nightcap. Should the Rosebuds win the double-header, they will be in undisputed hold of the first place.

Friday at Worcester a double-header will be staged, with Worcester Rosebuds playing New Bedford in a Northeastern League game, and Rosebuds of the Boston "T" meeting Walham in the other.

The lights will be on for the contest will be handled for the pair-played at Roger Baker's expense. He tried the experiment in a midday game last Sunday at Wayland and 7500 fans turned out.

Featuring Grover Cleveland Alexander, the original House of David baseball club, will be in this vicinity the latter part of July. Already dates in Lebanon and Somersworth, N. H., have been clinched.

Four titles are carded for the Park League tonight. In the standard attraction, Upson vs. Garvey, Playground, Neponset, where they cross bats with Dick Casey's nine.

Boston Tow Boat outfit plays Roslindale, St. Augustine visit Charlestown and Raymond Club plays host to the Madlans in the other contests.

Mr. Boston Says:

Story of Rockingham Romance of Racing Wilson and Egan

By Jack Conway
ROCKINGHAM PARK at Salem, N. H., is ready for its 1934 opening on Saturday.

Last month looks for the most successful race meeting of the season to be the opening of New England. Last year Rockingham was known to horsemen everywhere as "The Pot of Gold." It made money on every race track in the East.

Great crowds of spectators are expected to flock to Rockingham Park each day to see the thoroughbreds of the turf in action.

The Saturday gathering will be the largest of the season as many as 20,000 persons.

There were no racing scandals connected with the Rockingham Park track. Last month's success was due to the fact that the track was in excellent condition and the racing was of a high class.

The racing bill in Massachusetts has made considerable progress, and it is expected that the legislature will pass the bill before the next year.

The Sport of Kings

RACING HAS always been considered the sport of kings. It gives the king a chance to show his power and his ability to manage his subjects.

There is a romance as well as a sport in racing. Thousands of people attend their lives following the great race meetings.

Racing has staged a remarkable comeback during a depression period. The turn came a year ago when the winter weather stormed the Florida tracks.

The success of racing in Florida caused the other states to legalize betting. Racing has not succeeded in other states because there has not been legalized betting.

David Wilson's Selections
EVERY DECADE or so there comes into a newspaper office a young man who has a little more than the ball in his particular line than anybody else.

This Spring the Boston Evening American added to its sports staff Dave Wilson of Westmore. He had written about horse races for the Bostonian News.

Wilson has been a sensation at the various horse races for the various horses as well as the various jockeys and trainers. He has a job as a turf writer took him to all the big race meetings in this country.

Egan's Color Stories
DAVE EGAN, who learned how to write at Harvard where he graduated with a bag full of degrees, will tell the color story of the Rockingham race meeting.

Egan has been writing sports for a dozen years, and knows the ropes. He has been writing for a dozen years, and knows the ropes.

This newspaper, of course, will publish the best action pictures from Rockingham. Along with the racing chart, entries, odds, and the usual selection for the next day.

Bound to Win--By Broaca
Yanks Ace Learned Wants to Take Dad Hurling From Book Out of Paper Mill Found in Alley in Lawrence

By Dave Egan
Today, Johnny Broaca of Lawrence is a made man. A Horatio Alger should be hired immediately to write his story.

The title should be "Bound to Win," for that's the Broaca type. He is the outstanding rookie pitcher of the year, as he moves through the Yanks, and he is now a proud Yale graduate, possessor of an A. B. degree. (Ed. note: The A. B. degree, along with a ten-cent piece, will get him a nice hamburger sandwich in any one-arm restaurant. The pitching assignment is certain to win him a good deal of fifty lumps, the rest of all, in the next ten or dozen years.)

New York, June 31—Some of the silver share gleamed brighter to-day and stock market sentiment exhibited signs of improvement.

While there was intermittent activity in some groups of equities, the trading volume of previous sessions persisted in most departments.

Many operators were admittedly out of the market for the time being, apparently waiting for some further motivation from economic or political developments.

That stocks generally showed recovery in the United States in the influence of declining prices was interpreted hopefully. Whipped more than a cent, a bushel, reflecting principally hedging pressure.

The spot of refined sugar to the highest level since August, 1937, was said to be partly attributable to the operation of the new quota.

Trading continued to drag in the second hour. Dulness was relieved only by a good demand for mining stocks, which worked slowly to higher ground.

American Sugar, Atchafalca, Columbian Carbon and U. S. Steel advanced at fractionally higher levels. Celanese advanced a point. Wilson & Co. common gained a point while U. S. Southern Pacific was a major fraction higher.

Brooks advanced little in the third hour with fractions in leaders ranging from Chrysler to American Smelting and Refining. McIntyre Porcupine and Dome Chemical advanced a point.

Franchise agreements were registered by Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, United Pacific, General Motors, U. S. Steel, U. S. Southern, U. S. Steel, Anaconda, Kennecott and Western Union.
